Food Ethos

Our menu reflects the essence of our local foodways, featuring berries from barrens and bogs, wild edibles from shorelines and woodlands, and fresh garden vegetables or those preserved in traditional root cellars. North Atlantic seafood, sourced from nearby waters chilled by the Labrador Current, is a centerpiece of our cuisine.

We craft our menus to evolve across seven seasons, often using bottling, pickling, and fermentation to honor the resilience of this hard-scrabble place. Blending modern techniques with time-honored culinary traditions, our dishes are both nutrient-rich and deeply rooted in the stories of Fogo Island's planters, fishers, hunters, and foragers.

With 80% of our ingredients sourced locally, we champion regenerative practices and a zero-waste mission. As a Shorefast social business, we reinvest our surpluses in community development, celebrating culture, nature, and entrepreneurship. Dining at the Inn supports the holistic health of our community and connects you to the fabric of this place.
